Jeff Harris lit a candle in honor of Louzelia.

It's never easy losing somebody you love, especially someone who's the heart of one's family. Aunt Lou always seemed like that lady who has seen a lot in her life, raised a lovely family, remained a quiet, yet cool woman. She was aware of what was going on in the world, sharper than people half her age, and seen things we could only dream of, let alone seeing history repeat itself as it were. Every weekend, my mother made sure to share everything happening up here and vice-versa. We're heartbroken. Your loss is our loss. Our family is a little smaller, but we pray God welcomes her into His Kingdom with open arms. Aunt Lou's not really gone as long as we hold onto our memories of her, and she made tons of memories. May God protect the Baldwin family and keep them strong in the days, months, and years ahead. Much love, the Harris family.

Rev. Joyce Foster lit a candle in honor of Louzelia.

I have known "Aunt " Lou all of my life and always admired her sweet quiet personality so much like her mother and sister. It was a joy to hear from her weekly through her niece and I thank God that we had direct contact this past Christmas. I am praying for her family
